THE LEADER AND THE SMO ROAD.

"Hope, for a season, never made the world farer off."

The Regina Leader in its last issue regrets "that in consequence of certain recent events it has again become necessary to deal with the question of the junction of the Soo railway." The Leader has made an important discovery. It finds that the road, over which the people of Regina were so exercised last spring, the location of which caused an agitation that furnished an enormous amount of "copy" for the two Regina papers, is not the "Soo" road, but the North-West Extension of the Souris Branch. "A road that was promised to Regina long, long ago. 'The very extension,'" says the Leader, "promised by Lord Mount-Stephen."

The Leader goes on to say: "We are quite certain Mr. Van Horne and his brother directors must have been acting under a misconception. We say they are bound, and the Government is bound, to see that this road is built to Regina. We say there is nothing left for them but to bring the road to Regina if they would save their faith with the Government, their plain dealing with the people of Regina, and their fair fame as honorable business men before the country."

Now, after the delicate bit of taffy in the last sentence, Mr. Van Horne can hardly have the heart to continue to be so unkind to the people of Regina. Stupid man! After the clear and forcible way in which the matter was laid before him in the columns of the Leader when the question was before the Directors—after the patient forbearance of the people of Regina in sending down two delegates to point out the error of his way, surely he will now acknowledge that he has been in the wrong, and will desist from his blundering course. Be patient, friend Leader, and see. "All things come round," you know, "to those who will but wait," and if the Soo road does not come round to the people of Regina, why then the people of Regina will have to come round to the Soo road, (by way of Moose Jaw.)

And feeling the immediate changing of the route of the Soo Railway, the Dominion Government will doubtless interfere; but if it does not there is yet a remedy. When the House meets again, nothing is so simple as to have some member bring in a motion of "want of confidence." It could be couched in almost the exact words of the Bette motion. "That the conduct of the Government towards the people of Regina, on the question of the location of the junction of the Soo Railway, and in other respects, has been such as to destroy the confidence of the House."

WORK ON THE SOO.

ST. PAUL, MINN., Oct. 5.—Every advantage will be taken by the Soo of what remains of the open season, for fall to push forward the construction of its extension northwest from Valley City, N. D. All the employment agencies in both cities have been pressed into service to furnish men, and it is expected that before winter sets in the boundary line will be in sight of the vanguard of workers. There are several reasons promoting this abnormal activity at present. One of these is that the construction has been delayed five weeks during the summer owing to the strike at Homestead, which prevented a steel bridge from being put in position on contract time. The want of this bridge put an almost insuperable obstacle in the way of the necessary material could not be transported. Another reason is found in the necessity, which becomes more urgent day by day, of the Canadian Pacific having a connection with this district independent of the Great Northern. A third reason is the advantage which the Soo will derive from the rich territory which this line will make tributary to it. North of the boundary the Canadian Pacific is displacing an equal degree of activity in pushing its spur north to the connecting point at Pasqua. It is estimated that the road will be open for traffic early in the spring, and that before summer the well advanced St. Paul will have another valuable Pacific connection extended to its doors.

WESTERN NEWS.

New Post Office for Calgary—Death of a Member of the Executive—Sutherland May Resign—New Legal Firm—Quarantine Claims Paid—Mr. Weeks' Funeral.

CALGARY, Oct. 3.—Instructions from Ottawa were received here today to have the old opera house removed immediately to make way for the erection of the new postoffice. Tenders for the erection of the new building, which will cost $20,000, will be called at once.

MR. REAMAN, M. L. A., IS DEAD.

REGINA, Oct. 2.—A telegram was received here tonight announcing the death of Joel Reaman, M. L. A., and member of the North West Government under Premier Cayley. His death was sudden. Reaman was in Regina attending to his public duties until some three weeks ago. He was the oldest member in the House.

WILLIAM SUTHERLAND, M. L. A. MAY RESIGN.

FORT QU'APPELLE, Oct. 3.—It is reported here that William Sutherland, M. L. A. for Fort Qu'Appelle, and member of the Haultain party in the Assembly, may resign his seat on account of some difficulty between him as postmaster and the department at Ottawa.

NEW LEGAL FIRM.

REGINA, Oct. 4.—The legal firm of Scott and Hamilton has been augmented by Mr. H. A. Robson. The style of the new firm will be Scott, Hamilton and Robson.

QUARANTINE CLAIMS PAID.

CALGARY, Oct. 3.—The executive of the North-West Assembly has allowed $1,988 in full judgment of expenses incurred in suppressing the recent outbreak of small-pox here. The total amount claimed was over $6,000. The Government assumed responsibility for payment of all accounts which were found legitimately binding. The Government auditor considered some of the claims for articles of clothing destroyed in a Chinese shack excessive. He also made considerable reduction in the prices charged for a portion of Mr. Halliday's goods that were destroyed, substituting wholesale for the retail prices charged. The goods bought from Mr. Halliday for consumption at the quarantine grounds were paid for at retail prices.

FUNERAL OF MR. WEEKS.

REGINA, Oct. 3.—The funeral of the late Mr. E. G. Weeks took place on Thursday last from the home of his brother-in-law Mr. Symonds. The funeral was conducted by the Wascana Lodge of Freemasons, the deceased having been an energetic member of that ancient fraternity.

The coffin was a beautiful piece of workmanship and the silver mountings were adorned with Masonic emblems.

The brethren assembled at the hall on South street where a lodge of sorrow was opened in due form, a procession was then formed in the proper order and proceeded to Mr. Symonds' house, where the Rev. J. A. Carmichael conducted a short service. The procession then reformed, the N.W.M.P. band taking its place at the head, and moved off towards the cemetery to the solemn strains of the Dead March in Saul. The brethren wore their full regalia, and the lodge jewels were borne by the appropriate officers. A large number of people in rig followed the procession.

On their arrival at the graveside the brethren formed a circle, when the Rev. Mr. Carmichael read a short service, and the Worshipful Master, S.

B. Jamieson conducted the beautiful Masonic service, the brethren repeating the responses. At the proper points in the ceremony the secretary of the lodge deposited the scroll, the Worshipful Master the lambkin apron, and the brethren circled round the grave each one casting in his emblematic sprig of evergreen. At the conclusion of the ceremony the grand honors were given and the procession reformed and returned to town where the lodge was closed in due form. The pall bearers were R. W. Brox, J. Benson, J. A. Kerr, J. A. McCaul, P. Thomas, A. Downey, and John Secord. Over forty brethren attended the funeral.

The late Bro. Weeks was a native of London, England, and not of London Ontario, as stated in our last issue.

BOHARM NEWS.

The weather is all that could be desired. The hum of the threshers has taken the place of the binder.

While our M.L.A. is viewing the the bridges in this district we would suggest that he takes the steamer some morning and views the bridge north of Boharm and attend to the needed repairs.

The inhabitants of Boharm were surprised and delighted Monday evening by hearing some beautiful singing. We afterwards discovered it came from a party of tourists returning from Spring Bank Ranch. The beautiful clear voice of Mrs. Chalmers could be distinctly heard among the number.

Rev. Mr. Stacey officiated in Boharm last Sunday and preached an elegant sermon from those words, "Tarry in Jerusalem until you are endowed with power from on high."

Master Norman Bellamy spent a few days at Melbourne Farm last week.

The congenial countenance of Mr. James Bell was seen on the streets the other day.

Miss Ostrander and Miss Bessie Ostrander paid a visit to Brax Barn Farm this week.

We have discovered who the lad is who has no name. His mamma caught him in the act and after telling him the story of George Washington and Peck's Bad Boy she dismissed him by telling a few friends. (Moral) Sign your name and tell your ma.

RAMBLER.

I have noticed in the TIMES several pieces headed "Boharm Jottings" and signed "Rambler." Now I notice that "Rambler" is always ahead of time and likes to rush the season pretty well.

We are glad to learn that "we" sing but I don't see where these come in. Being a listener, I thought the singing rather flat. However I was told that the failure was caused by the absence of two ladies from the Boharm choir.

It is no longer a mystery with me who "Rambler" is. I have him spotted.

We don't think Mr. Rambler is a bit smarter than he thinks he is, although we admit he is pretty smart for he says the Binders are all laid away for this season. Now we fail to see them laid away. The hum of many a binder can be heard still and will be for a few days yet.

We think Mr. Rambler must live in the sunny South, when he is so early.

THE JOKER.

Dismissal of Conductors.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.—The recent item telegraphed from Ottawa relative to the wholesale dismissal of old time conductors on the Canadian Pacific railway, between Ottawa and North Bay, seems to have been considerably exaggerated. It is true some men were dismissed, but in the majority of cases suspension was the rule, and the most of those so treated will be put at again at work.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions expressed by correspondents. No communication will be inserted unless the name of the writer accompanies it, and necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

Sir: Can you not write a few words in your columns to point out and hold up to the public contempt those parties who in defiance of ordinances and town by-laws and Inspectors, persist in feeding their live stock in the streets of our town, and allowing them to roam at their will over sidewalks, up against doors of our houses, breaking into our gardens, destroying fences, eating off our trees and shrubs, in short making a barnyard of our streets. It is well known that there are only a few parties who persistently defy law in this matter, but if these few are allowed to continue to unharness their horses and turn them out into the streets to feed, and herd their pigs in their neighbors' gardens, all efforts of good citizens to improve or beautify their premises will be abortive. The question then is: will the law be allowed to defy the laws and destroy our gardens with impunity? I say, Mr. Editor, that if they are so lost to all sense of decency and regard for the rights and property of others, or so poor that they cannot feed and take care of their stock, some one else should take care of it for them. Hold the law breakers up to the public gaze, Mr. Editor, and I dare say the outraged citizens would subscribe to a fund to feed the poor animals in some less expensive way than in our gardens. Yours etc.

A SUGGESTION.

ECHOES FROM "THE JUNCTION."

Who started "The Prairie Fire" last Sunday?

Who is the party that drives "the fat broncho and stylish buck-board"? Harvesting will be completed in this neighborhood some time between now and Christmas.

The Pasqua Threshing Syndicate have dissolved partnership. It is a pity. They were an agreeable company. We understand Messrs. J. Thompson and Vincent are bringing a machine in here. If they are as obliging as our Company of last year we will get our threshing done some time between now and Spring.

Our Pasqua news dealer, Mr. Hutchinson, is as busy as usual, wet or dry, rain or shine, he is always getting there. Never mind "Hutchy," there will be work when we are all dead and gone.

Eastview has just completed the noblest School in the District. Mr. N. Alcock, who was superintendent of the school completed it in his usually good style. "Behind again Pasqua."

We had a pleasant call from Mr. Robinson this week, who was out looking after his interests here. He intends moving out to his farm when his term of office expires.

We had the extreme pleasure of watching a foot race the other morning between Mr. C. Ashwin and a bulger. As usual Charlie was a little ahead and Mr. Bulger a good second.

There is a well beaten trail from Mr. J. W. Stephenson's to the Eastview Settlement.

We are very sorry to have to part with one of our young ladies. She will not only be missed in school, but also in the great assistance she gives in the choir. "Good for Walter."

"Not subject to some ancient law,
Not mastered by some modern term,
Not swift nor slow to change: but firm."

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1892.

THE SITUATION.

Believing that before long the elections of the Moose Jaw District, as well as those of the whole Territories, will be called upon to express by their votes their opinion on the political situation in the North-West Assembly, and realizing the necessity of the electorate's fully understanding the true aspect of affairs, we deem it fitting that the whole proceedings from the beginning should be presented to them in concise shape.

During the session of 1891-92 of the Legislative Assembly, Mr. Haultain, member for Macleod, was leader of the executive enjoying the confidence of the House. Some very important legislation was introduced at this session, the chief of which was the Liquor License Ordinance and the School Bill.

He was summoned again in August by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, who, in his Speech from the Throne, mentioned, as his reason for doing so, the urgent necessity for the immediate distribution of the large sums of money which were to be expended in roads and bridges in different parts of the country, and the like necessity of considering the workings of the Liquor License Ordinance.

Towards the close of this session, but before any legislation had been accomplished, the now famous overshoot of the Haultain executive took place. The motion of "want of confidence" was moved by Mr. Betts, the member for Cumberland, and seconded by Mr. Mowat, the member for South Regina. The reasons advanced were:

1. In the formation of the executive, and subsequently when vacancies in the executive had to be filled, the District of Saskatchewan was ignored;

2. The executive had not introduced legislation except in a few minor matters;

3. Mr. Haultain did not consult his colleagues on matters appertaining to the executive but had ignored his colleagues, particularly Mr. Clinkskill who had resigned in consequence;

4. Haultain's manner was cold and distant;

5. The Executive had been lax in the preparation of an appropriate Territorial exhibit for the World's Fair.

After a long debate, the substance of which has appeared in the columns of the Times, the motion was sustained by a majority of one.

Mr. Haultain immediately placed his resignation in the hands of His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, who summoned Mr. Cayley and entrusted him with the formation of an executive. Mr. Cayley subsequently submitted the names of Mr. McKay, Mr. Mowat and Mr. Rosman who were sworn in.

This was followed by the resignation of Speaker Ross, member for Moose Jaw, thus creating a deadlock.

The Cayley party then attempted to elect Mr. Sutherland, the member for South Qu'Appelle, but the vote stood thirteen to thirteen.

It is alleged that one of Cayley's supporters attempted to bribe Sutherland by offering him an increased salary as Deputy-Speaker if he would vote for and support the Cayley party, but the truth or falsity of this charge has not yet been proved, and it is not to the purpose to discuss it.

His Honor the Lieutenant Governor had a special edition of the North-West Territories Gazette printed in which he stated that he had prorogued the House. This issue of the Gazette was printed at midnight of Wednesday, Aug. 1st, and was distributed early next day.

His Honor was waited upon next morning by a deputation consisting of Messrs. Haultain, Tweed and Magrath, who offered His Honor a Speaker in the person of Mr. Magrath. This was done in order that the serious charge of bribery could be investigated on the floor of the House. Their mission was fruitless.

Thus far we have endeavored to lay out the ground in clear and concise terms. We will now deal with the reasons given by Mr. Betts, and those who supported his motion; with the subsequent action of Speaker Ross in resigning; of Mr. Cayley in retaining office; of the Lieutenant Governor in proroguing the House. We will endeavor to prove: (1st) that the reasons were not sufficient for the overthrow of an executive; (2nd) that Speaker Ross was justified in the step he took; (3rd) that Mr. Cayley's action in retaining office was and is unmanly and unstatesmanlike; and (4th) that His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, in proroguing the House, stands revealed as an active and unscrupulous partisan, whose demeanor throughout the crisis was unintelligible, except on the hypothesis that his determination was to play into the hands of the Cayley party.

When Mr. Haultain formed his Executive he took in with him Mr. Clinkskill the member for Battleford. A Bill was introduced by Mr. Haultain providing for a uniform inspection of schools. Mr. Clinkskill disagreed with some of the main provisions of the Bill and in consequence resigned. All the members from Saskatchewan with the exception of Mr. Betts, the member for Cumberland, and Mr. Mitchell, the member for Mitchell, declared themselves in accord with Mr. Clinkskill. Mr. Haultain offered the vacant seat to Mr. McKay, the member for Prince Albert, but he refused assigning no reason. Mr. Meyers, the member for Kinistone, was not a suitable man for the position. He had had no training for executive work. Mr. Nolin the member for Batouche was before the courts and was subsequently unseated. Mr. Betts, the member for Cumberland, was practically out of the question, because his views on responsible control and his attitude towards the previous House would debar him from a seat on the Executive.

At this juncture it was necessary that Mr. Haultain should go to Ottawa on business connected with the Assembly. Important business had to be transacted in his absence. It was necessary to leave the control of affairs in the hands of a man who was accustomed to office work, a man who understood the working of the Liquor License Ordinance. Such a man was Mr. Cayley. His profession was such as would qualify him for the despatch of office business, and he himself had framed and introduced the Liquor License Ordinance.

When Mr. Haultain returned from Ottawa, Mr. Cayley resigned. Mr. Mitchell accepted the vacant position. He had been on the old advisory council with Mr. Haultain. But when that council resigned he announced his intention of remaining out of any future executives. He accepted office solely because, in his opinion, capital was about to be made of the fact that the District of Saskatchewan was without representation.

If it could have been shown that, during the time that Saskatchewan was unrepresented, the district had suffered in any way, the contention would be good. This was not shown. The placing of a sum of money in the hands of each member for expenditure in his district (although bad in principle) made it impossible that the rights of any district could be ignored.

It is not the duty of an executive to introduce legislation, save legislation on all matters of a financial nature. The executive are elected to act as the advisers of the Lieutenant Governor, to be responsible for the disbursement of the moneys voted for divers purposes, and to perform the executive duties appertaining to a legislative body. If the Assembly was constituted on party lines it would be different, but, as matters stand, while it is the privilege of the executive to introduce legislation, it is not their bounden duty to do so.

We have no means of knowing whether Mr. Haultain ignored his colleagues or not. Mr. Haultain denies the charge. Messrs. Neff, Tweed and Mitchell stated on the floor of the House that they had always enjoyed the confidence of the Leader. But the resignation of half a dozen Cabinet Ministers would not be sufficient ground for the overthrow of a government. The Premier would simply draw from his forces until he obtained members who were in accord with the Cabinet on vital questions. This accusation, which is of an exceedingly trivial nature, only enables us to conclude that other accusations, the truth or falsity of which we cannot ascertain, are equally childish and without foundation.

With regard to the World's Fair exhibit, the executive had taken steps in the matter. The sum of $5000 had been placed in the estimates for the purpose of securing a suitable exhibit. But even had the executive taken no steps in the matter the question was not sufficiently important to justify the overthrow of the executive.

Did the men who led that agitation fully comprehend the gravity of the action they proposed, and the serious difficulties it would necessarily entail? Were they actuated by an earnest belief in the absolute necessity of the course they were taking? Could they look forward with hopeful assurance to the day when their action would be vindicated by the voice of the people? To these questions the country has a right to clear, unequivocal replies.

Mr. Ross has been unjustly blamed for his action in resigning the speaker-ship. There were two quasi-parties in the House: one, who had supported the Lieutenant Governor some two years before when he was acting in a partial and unconstitutional manner; the other, those who had been instrumental in securing the measure of Responsible Government the House now enjoys. With this last Mr. Ross was strongly allied. And knowing better than any other man in the assembly, (being perforce a non-partisan,) how baseless were the charges made against the executive in the want of confidence vote and in the speeches in support of it, knowing, in like manner, the ability displayed by Mr. Haultain in public affairs, and the executive duties pertaining to his office, and feeling, as the representative of an important district, that he ought and was in duty bound to shew his approval of Mr. Haultain's actions, there was no other course open to him than to resign his non-partisan office, and subsequently on the floor of the House express his allegiance and fidelity to those in whom he had confidence, and his condemnation of the manner in which the executive was overthrown.

Mr. Cayley's course from the time of the speaker's resignation, and the failure to elect a speaker, has been unstatesmanlike and unconstitutional. He may peruse all the works on constitutional law and procedure without finding a single clause that could be interpreted as justifying his retaining office when he did not possess the confidence of the House. His undoubted duty was to have apprised His Honor of the fact, and advised a dissolution of the House in order to ascertain in which executive the people had confidence. And if His Honor refused a dissolution he, Mr. Cayley, should have tendered his resignation. And this is not without precedent. In our own federal parliament when the Hon. George Brown was called upon by the Governor General, Sir Edmund B. Head, to form a ministry, he did so; and, after the formation of his executive he advised the dissolution of the House. His Excellency replied in these words:

"After full and mature deliberation on the arguments submitted to him."

"and with every respect for the opinion of the council, His Excellency declines to dissolve parliament at the present time."

Mr. Brown and his ministry immediately tendered their resignation, which His Excellency was forced to accept. A new ministry was formed that tendered like advice to His Excellency, who seeing the error of his former decision, immediately dissolved the House and a new election followed.

Mr. Cayley sought personal aggrandizement, and we might even hint at the unseemly appearance of the emoluments to be derived from an executive office. He seems to set aside the constitutional consideration of questions. He seems incapable of doing anything to elevate the tone of Territorial politics, but rather all his actions tend to create petty, vexatious issues. There is no principle in the theory of responsible government so vital to its right working than that the leader of an executive should take his stand upon vital questions, and mount to office or resign it through the success or failure of his efforts to carry these into practical legislation.

In default of the advice of Mr. Cayley to dissolve the House, the chief executive officer representing Her Majesty, should of his own motion have dissolved the House in order that he might have as his advisers an executive approved by the people, an executive who could carry on the legislation as well as the executive duties referred to in his Speech from the Throne. On this there is no question, and one does not need to be a profound student of constitutional laws to perceive it: it must be apparent to the most casual observer. A dissolution would ascertain the vox populi, whether Haultain's course met with the approval of the electorate, or whether the people wished to transfer their support to the executive elect.

There was no necessity for such unseemly haste in proroguing the House. It was the duty of the Lieutenant Governor to exhaust every possible alternative before subjecting the Territories to the inconvenient and demoralizing system of government now in vogue. The Honorable Joseph Royal has chosen deliberately to place himself in an attitude of hostility towards the people of the Territories and, influenced by the counsel of a disgraceful and shameless cabal, has openly insulted them.

Bourinot, on page 67 of his "Parliamentary Procedure," says:—

"In exercise of his functions, the Lieutenant Governor should, of course, maintain that impartiality towards political parties, which is essential to the proper performance of the duties of his office. The only safe principle that he can adopt for his general guidance is that pointed out to him by the experience of the working of parliamentary institutions; to give his confidence to his constitutional advisers while they enjoy the support of the majority of the legislature."

Had the man who now disgraces the Lieutenant Governor's seat confined himself to the legitimate exercise of his authority, and respected the rights and privileges of the people, the situation at Regina would not be as it is.

A remedy has to be applied to this state of affairs; and it must be such a remedy as will overthrow the unjust dominance of the Lieutenant Governor, and remove from the Territorial arena an unscrupulous partisan to a sphere where the exercise of his peculiar talents will not jeopardize our constitutional rights. It is the most incumbent duty of the federal authorities, dictated as well by the most cherished principles of constitutional law, as by justice and good policy, to fill the gubernatorial Chair, with a man who will not disgrace it by acts so improper. And, following this, the constitutional recourse of an appeal to the people offers the only solution to the deplorable state of affairs.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Canada's exports for August were over $13,000,000, being nearly three and a quarter millions more than the figures for the same month of last year. The imports also show an increase.

W. A. Proctor, a Cincinnati millionaire, evidently has faith in this country for he has purchased $30,000 worth of Calgary real estate. The property is situated on Stephen Avenue and includes the Queen's Hotel, owned by S. J. Clark. Mr. Proctor has been through American and Canadian cities on the Pacific coast, but prefers Calgary as a point for safe investment. He will erect a stone block near spring.

Those who desire to ornament their homes with groves of trees should now visit the shores of the river, where they can procure abundance of the seeds of ash leaved maple. If the seeds are sown on a cultivated piece of ground before the earth freezes there will be a multitude of fine young trees next summer that will be suitable for transplanting, or if left a beautiful grove will soon be formed.

What the Editor Gets.

When a child is born into the world the physician is presented and gets about $10 for officiating at the important event. The editor brands the advent of the stranger and gets a cursing for making a mistake as to the sex and date of arrival.

After a while the child becomes a man, the minister is called to perform the marriage ceremony and walks off with a $10 bill in his pocket for his trouble. The editor is again called upon to chronicle this event by drawing on his imagination to make the bride and groom the best and most respectable people in the country. His only pay is to be asked for a few extra copies of his paper to send to some absent friends.

In time the once baby, once happy groom, but now a man well advanced in years, is brought down by death. Again the physician is called in and makes his bill, the undertaker is present and officiates at the funeral, and time waits $100 for performing the last sad rite, while the editor is expected to complete the drama by holding up the deceased as a model gentleman, and who at present is lying up the golden stairs. The probabilities are at the same time that the baby, the groom and the dead man have been so infernally stinky that he had stunted his wife and children and had never contributed one cent to the support of his local paper.

What does the editor get? He gets left.

Some Points for Those Who Go Out Sporting.

Never regard your gun as empty; never point it at anyone; never, in handling it about, allow the muzzle to be pointed at anyone.

Never draw it out of a coat with the muzzle towards you; never, when walking with it in your hands, allow the barrels to line anyone, either in front or behind you. If in the open carry it across the hollow of your left arm; if in brush or thicket carry it muzzle up and back at half cock.

Never climb a fence with a gun in your hand. Better to draw the charges and reload after you are safely over. If a muzzle loader remove the caps from the nipples. Never attempt to close a breach loader with the hammer resting on the plunger.

Never shoot at anything when there is danger of wounding anyone who might be in the line of fire.

Never, in shooting from a boat, allow the stern man to use his gun. Sit in the bow and let all the shooting be done from there. Men are liable to become excited when shooting and pay no more attention to the game than those around them.

Never finger or fool with the triggers. This is a common fault with men sitting idly waiting for a shot and has been productive of many deaths.

Never leave a loaded gun in the house. Always withdraw the charges when the day's shooting is ended. Then children cannot by handling it provide a subject for a funeral.

Edmonton Bulletin: The would-be premier of the North-West is in print again, by the same route as before, to wit: The capacious ear of the editor of the Regina Leader. The interview appears as a so-called "Premier's Talk." If the alleged premier had talked less and said more the interview might have been more interesting and valuable. As nearly as can be gathered from the postally published reports of this interview its object was to make as many of the public as possible believe that the Bulletin had misstated the merits of the case regarding the recent events at Regina, whereby his honor the lieutenant-governor has again secured control of affairs through four pliable tools, willing to accept place and salary without honor and without power. As to the bulletin's statements, those of the public who have followed the course of events at Regina are in a position to judge of their correctness, without repeating them or further arguing the matter, especially with an alleged premier who finds it convenient to attack his opponents and declare his policy in a newspaper interview rather than in the legislature which he failed to lead. The statement made by Mr. Cayley, regarding his opponents and his policy is worth notice. He says "It was true there was no charge of misappropriation or mismanagement of public funds. No one ever said there was, but we do say that an equal division is a bad system." It is just as well to keep this little paragraph in mind, against the premier's next interview. It is to be hoped that his admission regarding his opponents may be as true of himself and friends as of his opponents. His declaration against an equal division of the public works money is important, in that it means an unequal division, or that the executive shall have the use of public funds with which to purchase a majority in the house, if that is necessary and possible. Although this declaration of policy that would naturally be expected from men who have taken such means of obtaining office as have been taken by Mr. Cayley and his associates, and it is just as well that the electors of the North-West should have before them at as early a date and as clearly as possible, what manner of men these are and what they propose to do. A considerable part of this important letter was taken up with telling the electors of the Leader and Free Press know that Mr. Cayley does not like or admire either the ex-spoken of the assembly or the editor of this paper. But as the would-be premier's love and admiration are well-known to be centered chiefly upon the junior member for Calgary there is nothing singular about his non-appreciation of the many excellent qualities of the two individuals mentioned. His personal allusions to the editor of this paper are such as might be expected from one of the personal record and associations of the premier. He is fortunate in that he can deal in personalities to an unlimited extent without danger of his own personality being discussed, as it cannot be fully in the columns of a paper intended for family reading as in the Bulletin.

Regina Standard: Mr. Cayley with supreme impudence asserts that "the present Executive was put there by a majority of the House." He probably makes this statement in the vain hope that the public are so ignorant as to believe that the same motion and vote which defeated the former Executive, called this one into existence. We have no hesitation in stamping the statement as circumstantially and essentially untrue on the very face of it, and there cannot be found in these Territories six good men and true, who will say that we are not justified in so characterizing it. If we accept his own definition of the term "House," they were not put there by a majority, a minority or any portion of it. His whole argument is the veriest word-juggling; deductions there are none.

We think we have fairly shown that the Speaker is both nominated and elected by his party, and Mr. Cayley, even if he have not "a particle of manhood or statesmanship in him" is bound by his own challenge to bow his exit to an unadmirable audience. Will he do it? Not he. He will cling to the $4,000 with all the tenacity of the sanguine medicals until the Federal authorities come to our relief. They cannot come too soon.

The Dominion Government strong though it be, cannot afford to countenance the blunder of His Honor. They must not, through their instrumentality, deprive us of the rights which have just been conferred, and moreover we feel confident that they will not attempt it. The probability is that the Lieutenant-Governor will be instructed to again convene the House, which he so hastily prorogued. Then, should the Assembly, after due trial, fail to elect a speaker and to proceed with the regular business, a dissolution must follow. This is the course that should have been adopted by His Honor at first, and the fact that he chose another reflects but little credit upon him, in respect to his prudence and impartiality.

SEALED TENDERS marked "Tenders for Bridges" and "Tenders for extension and repairing of Bridges," will be received by the undersigned up to noon of Saturday, October 8th, 1892 for the building of a bridge over the Moose Jaw Creek at what is known as Indian's Crossing.

FALL OPENING H. MCDOUGALL SEASON 1892.

Six years ago when I started business on the cash plan, other merchants gave me three months to last. I am here yet and have pretty well demonstrated the fact that the people of Moose Jaw will pay cash if by doing so they can save money. This system has enabled me to throw on the market large lots of goods purchased from large wholesale stocks, parties retiring from business, and overloaded manufacturers. These I have sold at low prices at the same time selling regular goods at from 10 to 25 per cent. less than other dealers. I shall continue this method of doing business regardless of croakers.

I will have auction sales on the following dates:

OCTOBER 8TH, 15TH, 22ND AND 29TH,

OF

Cook-stoves, Heating-stoves, Stove Furniture, Cutlery, Brushes, Brooms, Etc., Etc.

I have just received a car-load of all kinds of stoves. Another car-load is on the way. These goods are to be sold at the lowest prices. Call and see my stock.

FOR CASH ONLY.

Thanking you for past patronage,

Yours truly,

W. R. CAMPBELL.

Port Elgin Times: "Death put an end to the sufferings of Mr. Robert McTavish Sunday at the residence of his brother, Mr. D. McTavish, North Bruce. The funeral Monday to Port Elgin cemetery was largely attended by friends and relations, many coming from Paisley. The last sad rites were performed by Rev. J. Eadie. The deceased leaves a family of two sons and a daughter. He was a genial kindly obliging man and will be long remembered by a host of friends. His wife died some eight years ago."

The North-West Sunday School Union will hold a convention in Regina on 26th and 27th inst. Delegates are expected from all parts of the Territories. The officers of the Union are working hard to make the affair an unqualified success. All Sunday Schools are expected to send in reports so that the Sunday School Force in the Territories can be arrived at. We have no doubt the Sunday School workers of our district will see that we are represented.

Death of Mr. Grayson Sr.

It is our painful duty to chronicle the death this week of Mr. Michael Grayson, who had been lying for some weeks dangerously ill. He passed away on Monday last.

Mr. Grayson was the father of Mr. William Grayson, Advocate, and Messrs. A. K. and John Grayson. He came to Moose Jaw in October 1820 from London, Ont.

The funeral took place on Wednesday from the Methodist Church. The cortege was followed by a large number of citizens.

A Shooting Incident.

A resident of Moose Jaw—a son of Auld Scotia—was on a shooting excursion to Macleam recently. Arrived at a house he found a young lady chasing a rooster with a view to decapitating it. She informed our Scotch friend that she had been chasing it for hours, and requested him to shoot the contrary bird. By this time Chanticleer was standing in some scrub. The Moose Jaw Nimrod raised his gun and fired, bringing to earth not only the noble rooster, but two of his female companions.

"Oh dear!" said the girl, "I wouldn't have had those poor hens killed for anything, I had only nine of them."

"Well woman!" said Scanty "you're only got seven the now!"
